

Key Takeaways

- Emergency Medicaid is a limited, federally mandated form of Medicaid that offers coverage to stabilize individuals with serious medical conditions who would otherwise be eligible if not for their immigration status.
- Emergency Medicaid expenditures accounted for a mean of 0.4% of total Medicaid spending, at a mean cost of $9.63 per resident, a cross-sectional analysis showed.
- States with larger undocumented populations spent more on emergency Medicaid, but spending was still less than 1% of the total Medicaid budget.

<https://www.medpagetoday.com/publichealthpolicy/medicaid/117899>